

Vietnam – 2007 retrospective

Commentary # 2 (Feb 2008) © Adam Fforde & Assoc. p/l
Edited by Adam Fforde with assistance from various contributors including:
Joerg Wischerman (wischermann@giga-hamburg.de) and
Gerhard Will (gerhard.will@swp-berlin.org)
Contact: adam@aduki.com.au

With continued high pressures upon commentators within Vietnam to take suitable views, this 'view from afar' gathers together more independent review and analysis.

This report is sold in soft copy on a 'single user' basis¹ for A$29.50 - PayPal payment www.aduki.com.au/sales.htm. Those on low incomes may contact the Editor to negotiate suitable arrangements, as should anybody who does not want to pay through PayPal.

Introduction: old wine in new bottles	2
Review of the year	4
Politics	4
Political direction	4
National Assembly elections.....	4
Government changes	6
The anti-corruption drive	6
The trial of two lawyers (Nguyen Van Dai and Le Thi Cong Nhan for 'opposing the people's administration').....	8
Popular demonstrations continue.....	9
Vietnam elected to the UN Security Council.....	11
Economic and social issues	11
Born in the state, living in the private sector.....	11
Inflation.....	12
Demonstrations and mass strikes by workers in joint ventures and export processing zones.....	13
The boom in the construction of industrial zones and infrastructure projects	14
Collapse of the Can Tho bridge and mudslide at Ban Ve mountain, Nghe An.....	14
Society and Culture	15
Social tensions.....	15
Cultural issues	16
Multitude of celebrations and gatherings at national and provincial level	16
Failure to resolve fundamental problems in education: corruption in examinations and the collapse of quality.....	16
Helmet-wearing on motorcycles	17
The movement to study the thought and teachings of Ho Chi Minh.....	18
Management of information available to the press.....	18
Environmental challenges.....	19
Conclusions	19
Points to watch:	20
Economy.....	20
Society/Politics	20
Foreign/Security Policy.....	21
Social issues	21
Various sources consulted.....	22

¹ Life is as it is – this means that we would prefer it if you had your friends and colleagues buy their own copies rather than giving them yours. We are not charging a high price. Nor are we charging a higher 'corporate' rate.